

The Bethel Courier.

FRIDAY MORNING, Nov. 16, 1866.

Ha! ha! ha! the CURIER comes out at last! All dressed up as neat as a city. Nothing of the rustic appearance about her. We intend that the CURIER shall be as good as any paper in the State for its variety of useful and entertaining reading. Such a paper is needed in this portion of the community. Now is an excellent time to subscribe for the CURIER. Call at the office in Chapman's Block, or else send by mail, and you will make two hundred percent by the operation before your year expires. Please read the article on the outside entitled Local Papers, and see how much you gain by having a good local paper.

JOB PRINTING.—We have now got our arrangements completed, and are ready to receive orders for job printing of every description, such as posters, programmes, pamphlets, visiting, wedding and business cards, &c., &c. We have every facility, such as new type and borders, fast job and card presses, &c., for doing our work in the neatest manner at short notice, and at low prices.

TO PRINTERS.—We have just received a lot of new wood type from the manufactory of Wm. H. Page & Co., of Greenville, Ch., ranging in size from four to twenty lines, of different styles every thing of which is cut and finished in a style superior to any we have ever before seen. The wood used is the very best, thoroughly seasoned and well oiled; the letters are deep and clean cut, and of faultless proportion, and are all of an equal height. We have heard much complaint from printers in this State of late that the wood type they have been buying during the past two years, was of very unequal height, making it impossible to do a good job without a great deal of "underlaying and overlaying." To such we would say, send your orders to Page & Co., and you will get type with which you will be perfectly satisfied. Give their type one trial and you will never want to use any other.

The Dollar Newspaper comes to us this week, looking like the old and valued friend that it is. It is one of the very best as well as the cheapest papers that comes to our office—always check full of the best original and selected stories, sketches, &c. It is published by Wm. M. Swain & Co., Philadelphia, at the low price of $1.00 per year.

The Panorama of the Mammoth Cave was exhibited at Patten's Hall, on Tuesday Eve., was well spoken of by those who saw it, but if the Proprietor expects to prosper, he must remember the poor printer.

Our agricultural readers will read with interest the article on our last page, entitled "A Good Cow." It contains many valuable hints.

Uncle Jake says that the meanest looking being he ever saw, was a narrow mouthed boy cracking peanuts during a public performance, when he wanted to hear what was said. Aunt Nabby apologized for the boy, as it was probable he had but little to eat at home.

D. T. Pike, Esq., for many years editor of the Augusta Age, has retired from the profession.

Will not some of our subscribers bring us a few bushels of potatoes and apples; also, some dry dard wood? We are in very pressing want of these articles.

Bug Pig.—Dr. Davis of Locke's Mills, slaughtered a shote of the Suffolk breed, that weighed 250 lbs., 7 1/2 months old.

Another.—Mr. L. C. True, of Pownal, killed a hog last week weighing 625 lbs., without the rough fat.

We understand that the "Old Folks" of Bethel intend giving concerts at Andover, Rumford and Bryant's Pond next week. We will warrant our friends in those towns a treat they have not had this many a day.

Aunt Nabby was pouring out the tea the other evening when a cheerful thought popped into her head. "Why said she, don't the ladies belong to the wild Arabs?"

"They are always wide awake enough when anything is going on," said Uncle Jake. She didn't like it, but said nothing.

Hon. Asa Smith of Mattawamkeig, Me., has counted the beans that grew upon a single stalk this season, the product of one bean. There were 237 pods, and 1150 beans.

We notice below what other papers say of us. First, Bro. Elwell of the Portland Transcript, whose opinion in such matters is second to nobody's, says:—

"The Bethel Courier appears this week in a new dress and looks as neat as a rustic leathery from the proprietorship, and is succeeded by Mr. J. Alden Smith, who has introduced many improvements into the office. Dr. S. T. True still continues to occupy the editorial chair,—and fills it too. He makes one of the sprightliest papers in the State.

Our every friend of the Maine Farmer, says:—

"The Bethel Courier under the editorial charge of our good friend Dr. S. T. True, comes to us much improved in its typographical appearance. A new publisher, new type press, &c., are sufficient to account for the improvement."

The Lewiston Republican, one of our very best exchanges, gives us the following "tip top" notice:

"The Bethel Courier comes to us this week clothed in a new and becoming typographical dress, and bears upon every page the evidence of an experienced workman. Mr. James Nutting retires from the proprietorship of the Courier and is succeeded by Mr. J. ALDEN SMITH, until recently the proprietor of the well and favorably known Bethel Printing Establishment, No. 1, Jones' Block, Lewiston. Dr. S. T. True still retains the editorial chair."

We would say to the patrons of the press in Bethel and vicinity that by this change of proprietors they have secured the presence of a "tip top" printer, a regular, reliable, and experienced man, and a man whom they will learn to esteem for his modesty of deportment and unobtrusive manners. We wish the Courier every success, and may the power press upon which it is now printed be transformed into a steam press, and its hundred of patrons into thousands.—Brother J. A. Smith, accept our love!

With pleasure, Bro. Johnson. Many thanks for your kind wishes.

Our genial friend PIERCE, of the Oxford Democrat, salutes us as follows:—

"BETHEL COURIER.—The Bethel Courier appeared last week in a suit of beautiful new type, as well as a new publisher. The new man is Mr. J. Alden Smith.—The doctor says he feels like a boy with a new jacket."

"The Bethel Courier has appeared in a new dress, under the proprietorship of J. Alden Smith, with his True continuation as editor. To adopt the recent style of the Doctor, we would say of the Courier, 'She looks very nice.'—Kennebec Journal.

BETHEL COURIER.—Bro. True announces an improved state of things in his sanctum and his hopes generally.—He is manifestly feeling good and we rejoice. His paper comes out in new type and press, having changed hands within a week or two. Bro. True is a good fellow and deserves a favorable mention which we are glad to give. We indulge every word of his greeting in the last number.—Bethel Reporter.

The Bethel Courier comes out in a new and attractive dress, and makes a fine appearance. The Courier is now published by Mr. J. ALDEN SMITH, a graduate of the Gazette office, and of course, a neat printer. Bro. True retains his position as editor, to the acceptance of his numerous patrons. Success to you, gentlemen.—Hallowell Gazette.

Driving a Pig.—We saw a man attempting to drive a contrary pig through our streets the other day. Now of all contrary beasts, except a contrary man, the worst is a contrary pig. Now he jumps this way, now that, and next with a fixed determination to dive between your legs until you feel as though you would like to beat his brains out with a hammer.—Soon he gets the advantage of you and counter runs in an opposite direction, and you run after him, uttering incoherent sentences against the brute till you are fairly tired out. As soon as he thinks that you are not particular which way he goes he gradually works his way in the right direction. Just so one has to deal with some hoggish men. Don't let them know what you want and they may do about right.

We have been much burdened of late in making out a cabinet for the next President. After the most mature deliberation we have selected the following gentlemen as well fitted for the position: For Secretary of State,—Oursell, Oxford Co. For Secretary of the Interior,—Bro. S. Wasson, Hancock Co. For Secretary of War,—Bro. A. G. Tenney, East Cumberland Co. For Postmaster General,—Bro. E. Elwell, Cumberland Co. For Secretary of the Navy,—not selected. For Attorney General,—Bro. E. Knight, North Cumberland Co.

There were on the docket in the court of Cumberland, this term, viz: thirty by wives and twelve by husbands. Of twelve cases tried, in eight divorces have been granted, two dismissed, and two entered to neither party.

New Publications.

THE ILLUSTRATED ANNUAL REGISTER OF RURAL AFFAIRS, and Cultivator's Almanac for 1867, by John J. Thomas, Associate Editor of the Country Gentleman, &c. Albany: Luther Tucker & Son.

We most heartily commend this beautiful little manual to the attention and patronage of our farmer friends in Maine. It contains an almost incredible amount of valuable information upon farming and gardening, as well as other subjects copiously illustrated with appropriate engravings. We would direct special attention to the poultry and appropriate hints for the month which appear upon the Calendar pages, as embracing in the most concise form many valuable suggestions.

The Register will be sent post-paid to any address for 25 cents, and it is worth twice the money; or a dozen copies post-paid for $2.

BEES AND BEE-KEEPING: A plain, practical work, by W. C. Harrison, Practical Apiarian. New York: C. M. Saxton, Barker & Co.

The author of this work seems to have some new ideas in regard to the economy of the bee. Persons who are engaged in bee-culture will find an advantage in examining this work, whether they come to the same conclusions as the author on all points or not. It is for sale by A. Williams & Co., Boston, and can be procured of Chas. A. Pierce, Augusta.

A very interesting and valuable book, embracing innumerable incidents in the eventful and useful life of John J. Audubon, whose researches and discoveries as an American naturalist have made his name illustrious, not only among his countrymen but throughout the world. The work is written in a familiar and pleasing style, and embodies a great deal of instruction in American natural history, which can nowhere else be found.

This is a tale of domestic life, and so naturally told that you do not feel in reading it that sense of improbability which so often accompanies the periodical of the ordinary creations of fiction. Every scene and character and incident in it, is just what might happen every day in the week.

Complete in one large handsome volume bound in cloth for one $1.25; or in two volumes, paper cover, $1.

LITTLE BY LITTLE, or the Cruise of the Flyaway. A Story for Young Folks. By Oliver Optic. Boston: Crosby, Nichols, Lee & Co.

The "young folks" will thank Oliver Optic for this story and great will be the desire among them to get it. His books have always been eagerly read, replete as they are with stirring incidents of sea and land, and narrated in a style to readily captivate the youthful imagination.

PETERSON'S MAGAZINE.—We are in receipt of this popular Lady's Magazine for December. It is a splendid number. "Peterson" has a circulation of 100,000. It will be greatly improved in 1867. It will contain 1000 pages of double column reading matter: 14 steel plates; 12 colored steel fashion plates; 12 colored pictures in Berlin work, embroidery, &c. &c. and 100 wood engravings—probably more than any other periodical gives. Its stories and novels are by the best writers. Its fashions always the latest and prettiest. Every neighborhood ought to make up a club. Its price is but two Dollars a year, or a dollar less than Magazines of its class. Subscribe for it and save a dollar. To clubs, it is cheaper still—viz: three copies for $6, or eight for $10. To every person getting up a club, the Publisher will send a magnificent premium. Specimens sent gratis to those wishing to get up clubs.

We have received a circular of a new publication, the "MAINE CIVIL OFFICER," prepared by Edward S. Morris, Esq., and revised by Hon. Elisha Skyles. This work will fill a void long felt in this State, and will be found a very necessary and useful hand book, not only for the civil officers, but for all intelligent citizens. It is published by Hays & Noyes, Portland, who are also publishers of the very popular progressive series of readers & spellers by Salem Towne, L. E. D., Smith's New Geography, Mayhew's Book-Keeping, Leverich's and Gardner's Latin Dictionaries, Waverly Novels, &c.

There were on the docket in the court of Cumberland, this term, viz: thirty by wives and twelve by husbands. Of twelve cases tried, in eight divorces have been granted, two dismissed, and two entered to neither party.

London Dust Heaps.

"I have not seen the half of London until he has gone through St. Giles.—There live those who have not slept on a bed for years; thousands who have not washed themselves for months. They hord together in filth and misery quite indescribable. They eat soup made of the bones which have been picked from a dust bin, or saved from the jaws of a hungry dog. This soup is cooked in a rough vessel, of which one suffices for a dozen or twenty families. It is eaten out of bowls which are literally pieces of patchwork, for they are made of a dozen pieces of crockery rudely patched and cemented together.

But there is one class of this sunken class of London whom I wish to follow through a day's experience, thankful that I need follow them no longer. Upon the Paddington wharves are collected enormous piles of confused rubbish, taken from the lanes and streets of London. Here is collected the contents of all the dust barrels of the city. And here work scores of women for such a pittance as scarce buys them a quarter loaf for supper. Often up to their knees, and sometimes up to their waists in ashes, they yet eat, and even sleep without so much as looking at a bowl of water.

The first business is to pass this conglomerate heap through a coarse sieve. In this way, all the old rags and bits of paper are easily found, in good time to be delivered to the paper maker, who will shortly transform them into delicate cream laid note paper, that would turn up its nose if its parentage were known. Then, too, pieces of old china are picked up, and carefully preserved. Whatever pieces of pottery or ingenuity can persuade to match are stuck together, and a bowl, cup or plate made that readily sells for a half penny. Whatever steadily refuses to be thus matched is carried away to make new streets with—sometimes jewelry is found, which very soon finds its way from the pocket of the lucky finder into the pawnbroker's hand, who advances a shilling or two, and is sure it will never be redeemed. Then, too, old bones are carefully gathered together and sold to the bone-boiler, and perhaps they make their re-appearance in bright buttons. Old iron and brass have their place, and a considerable revenue is obtained from them. Old glass, old carpets, quilts, baskets, handkerchiefs—all are eagerly sought and easily disposed of. We must not forget old shoes, which, after passing through the hands of a skilful "translator," bring very respectable prices.

That which has passed through the sieve has a history equally interesting. The unburnt coals are gathered in a separate heap, to be sold at the best price.—Then the "bricks," or half burnt coal, has its place; this is sold to the brick makers, who use it as fuel to burn between their layers. The ashes, also, carefully sifted, are sold to the brick makers, who mix them with their clay.—Thousands of children of ashes are disposed of for this purpose every month.

A dust heap as large as is frequently seen, is said to be worth from one to three thousand pounds. How lucky it is that London can consume its own dirt. If it did not, where could it be put? In a generation or two it could bridge the channel, and maybe even make a driveway along the great Atlantic plateau.—When that is done, we can relay the cable.

The Stockport (N. Y.) Courier says a couple went into a hat and fur store in that village to make purchases. When they were about to leave, the salesman asked the lady to purchase one or more of his tasteful hats for her boys.—The lady, assuming the dignity of Queen Elizabeth, said: "I have only been married about twenty minutes. I have no boys yet!" The salesman was speechless; he had not another word to say.

NEW SETTLING LANDS.—Seward Dill, Esq., of Phillips, in a recent letter to the Maine Farmer, writes as follows:—"I have just completed the opening of the State Road thro' township No. 4, R. 3, a distance of 8 miles, and find much more good land than I anticipated. There is not so much hill in eight miles as there is from Augusta to Hallowell.—You may run a plow one foot deep and not strike a stone for two miles on a stretch. Several men are taking up land and selling it, and there are more going in this week."

We advocated strongly last winter the importance of opening public roads the whole length of the State to the Canadian border. Millions of acres of excellent land are still undeveloped in Northern Maine for want of access by roads.

It is proposed to cover the roofs of houses in the city of New York with a garden.

New Map of Maine.

We have before alluded to the enterprise now in progress by Messrs. J. Chase & Co., of Portland, of preparing a new township Map of Maine; as this is a matter of general interest, and one which is being brought at the present time, directly to the notice of our citizens, a more detailed account of it, than we have before given, may not be inappropriate.

The subject of preparing a township map of the State was brought before the Legislature at its last session, and a pressed was that body with the importance of the measure, the necessity of having it well done, if done at all, that they passed a Resolved making a liberal appropriation for the encouragement of the enterprise. An able report on the subject was presented by Hon. Henry Williamson, of Somerset, from which we make extracts as follows:—

"Maine has no proper or correct Map of its whole extended territory, and a necessary for such is now generally felt. Several other States, New Brunswick and the Canadas have recent authentic Maps of their respective territories; while the most authentic Map of Maine is that prepared by Greenblatt in 1829, although revised since by him and other parties, is necessarily inaccurate, meagre and incomplete in the delineations given, is on a small scale, and wholly inadequate to present wants."

The Map now to be prepared will be infinitely superior to any ever before projected or proposed of our territory. The census of 1860, will probably show a population of nearly a million in Maine. Our valuation has been immensely increased, showing the progress of material wealth among us as a people. Our unoccupied, fertile lands are attracting thousands of settlers. Our commercial facilities are securing the attention of neighboring communities and foreign interests. A new map ought therefore to be made, which shall be equal, if not superior to any other State Map, in order to represent us properly at home and abroad.

Such a Map is that now in progress by the parties now referred to above. The work, we understand, is being prosecuted with all the despatch requisite to its correctness and good execution. The survey is now for completed, as to make it highly probable that the Map will be ready for distribution early next summer. Some idea of what is proposed may be had from the following statements:—

The Map, in order to show everything properly, will be nearly six feet square and will exhibit the whole State from actual surveys. Each town and county will be colored separately, so that the boundaries can be clearly seen. All the physical features of the State will be delineated together with more than 25,000 miles of road. Churches, Post Offices, Manufactories, Hotels, Public Buildings, and many stores and private dwellings will also be located. The coast survey made by the general government will be adopted, thus giving an accurate plan of our numerous harbors, bays, islands, &c. In addition to these general features of the Map, there will be in the margin, detailed plans of all the cities, and several of the important towns.—There will also be a map of the United States, nearly two feet square, which will be of advantage in showing the connection of our railroads with other sections of the country.

The Map will be engraved on steel plates, and we are assured that no pains or expense will be spared to make it not only a beautiful work, but one of the most useful of which any one, and especially a citizen of Maine, may feel proud. The price will be six dollars.

We would say that it is proposed to publish a Directory, in book form, containing the name, occupation, or business of every subscriber to the map. In this book will be given the statistics of the Census, and other matters of State interest, so that, taken in connection with the Map, it will be a ready and indispensable reference not only for business men but for families. This will be a good feature and one which will doubtless be duly appreciated. The Directory will be furnished only to subscribers to the Map, and without additional charge.—Jm. Sentinel.

GIFT BOOK ESTABLISHMENTS. We do not often endorse or speak in favor of such establishments as Gift Book Enterprises, or any other Gift enterprises, believing that for the most part they are catch-penny affairs. But we are always willing to give every one his due. Decisions of obtaining a particular book, and being solicited to join a club which was being formed, we concluded to do so, not with the expectation of receiving any valuable in the shape of a present, but merely to satisfy ourselves of the fact. We accordingly forwarded a dollar with our order to Messrs. D. W. Evans & Co., New York, and in due time received our book which we consider richly worth the money, but also a fine Telescope Gold Pen. Each of the others received presents varying in value from $1 to $5. Now we do not recommend to any one to do their luck or invest their money for books they do not want, but to those who are desirous of procuring any book not to be found at home we would say that we honestly think you will not lose anything by sending to Messrs. D. W. Evans & Co., New York.—Repub. Clarion.

The State Teacher's Association will meet at Lewiston, Thanksgiving week. The exercises will commence on Monday noon and close on Wednesday noon. It is expected that teachers will be passed over the roads at reduced fares. We trust that Oxford County will send a strong delegation of teachers to the Convention. Subjects of great importance will be discussed at the meetings.

GLASS BLOWING. There was a beautiful exhibition of Glass Blowing at Patten's Hall, on Wednesday and Thursday evenings of this week. Rarely has an audience in this place been more pleasantly entertained and instructed at the same time, than in witnessing the operations of blowing. The glass steam-engine composed of no less than 2500 different pieces of glass is a great curiosity. Such an exhibition will succeed anywhere.

They will exhibit at Gorham, N. H., on Friday and Saturday evenings, and we assure the Gorhamites that it will be a rich treat.

CARRIER PROBLEMS.—A Long Island paper says that the New York Associated Press are arranging for the employment of carrier pigeons to intercept the in-bound European steamers off Fire Island. It says:—

The association have, we understand, decided to extend their pigeon express to every point along the seaboard, from New York to Cape Race, where it is possible to have the steamers intercepted.

Among the points that are thus to be observed in addition to Halifax, Sandy Hook, and Fire Island are, we understand, Montauk Point, Nantuxet, Portland, St. John's, N. E., and Cape Race. The breed of birds used by the association is the celebrated Antwerp carrier, which, when properly trained and used, will, we are reliably assured, fly at the rate of one mile per minute, and undergoing from the point where they are thrown up to their home. Each bird will carry, when properly adjusted to its legs, matter enough to make a copy of our paper, and our readers will be gratified to learn that we have made arrangements by which we shall be able to receive by the association's birds all the interesting points of each steamer's news within a few moments after the steamer arrives. (In the day time), in the vicinity of Fire Island. The birds have been located in the excellent quarters upon the premises of Mr. S. C. Smith, in our village, (Halifax) and we understand they are soon to be put to work. The news will be sent to New York by the nearest telegraph station, or by a relay of carriers, as circumstances may require.

Temney keeps cautioning the people to look out for their children.—We never knew a fellow who is constantly crying "stop their" whom it was not perfectly safe to keep an eye upon.—Jm. Times.

Earlier hard, Bro. Gilman. Be careful or you will injure the profession.

On Tuesday, 6th, a train of fifty-two cars passed up the Grand Trunk Railway, during the forenoon. The train thus forenoon, contained one hundred and thirty cars. The road has a contract to transport 2000000000 of cotton from Cairo, Ill., to Buffalo and New York. The business for the last week was $200,000 against $600,000 for the corresponding week, last year.—Oxford Free Press.

A REMOVAL AMONG THE RAYMONDS. The Countess La Torre is a lady so devoted to Garibaldi and his cause that she follows the Dictator wherever he goes. At Caserta she wore a blunder dress, having pantaloon, a man's hat with a red feather, and high boots. For arms she carried a revolver and a sabre, both of which she can use with great skill.

ABUSE OF A NOTORIOUS THIEF.—Michael Conner, of Portland, a notorious thief, who has recently committed several larcenies in Lewiston, was arrested in that city a few days since, and taken to Auburn for trial. A woman named Eliza J. McMillan has also been arrested in Lewiston for receiving the goods of Mike.

FIKE.—A dwelling house at Tomont's Harbor, St. George, owned by D. F. Tracy, was burned on the night of the 10th Inst. Loss $6000.

A CARD.—The Republican Wide Awake, of Gorham, N. H., take this method to prefer to the others of Bethel, their warmest thanks for the kind feelings manifested towards them, and the abundant and welcome refreshments furnished them on the occasion of their recent visit to the city.

NOTICE TO TEACHERS.—The School Committee of Bethel, in accordance with the examination of teachers, as follows:—At Bethel's Corner, Saturday, Nov. 18th, at 8 o'clock, A. M. At the School house, Bethel, Saturday, Nov. 18th, at 8 o'clock, A. M. The examination will be made in writing and conducted in the manner described in the Circular for Oct. 19th. Every candidate should be punctual to the hour, (the time will be found short enough), prepared with all necessary writing materials. A. G. GAINES.

TO CONSUMPTIVES.

THE Advertiser, having been restored to health in a few weeks by a very simple remedy, after having suffered several years with a severe lung disease, and after trying all the most celebrated remedies, he is anxious to make known to his fellow sufferers the means of cure.

To all who desire it, he will send a copy of the prescription and full directions, with the full particulars for preparing and using the same, which they will find a most reliable remedy for Consumption, Asthma, Nervousness, &c. The only object of the Advertiser in sending the Prescription is to benefit the afflicted, and spread information to all who are afflicted with this disease, and to beguise every sufferer with his remedy, as it will not cost him anything, and may prove a blessing.

King County, New York.

TAIN ANALYSE FOR RHEUMATISM.—Rheumatism, as often treated by outward application, fails of cure or relieves from the very fact that most of the disease is internal. This remedy is a most reliable cure. The cause of Rheumatism is the blood or circulation and over-acidness of the blood. Local Remedies are generally of no use, but the more internal the cure, but when it passes from one part of the system to the other it then is a Rheumatism of the system. Therefore all cases of general Rheumatism are cured, and will be cured with the Tain Analyse. In cases of Indigestion, one light Cathartic pill, without intermission, will assist the Tain Analyse. This same law applies with nearly equal force to cases of Partial Paralysis, Stomach, & St. Vitus' Dance. See advertisement and read the pamphlet.

To Horse Owners.

DR. SWEET'S INFALLIBLE LINIMENT FOR HORSES is unavailable in any, in and a cure of Lameness, as well as a cure of Rheumatism, is of itself magical and certain. Horse of Saddle Girths, Scratches, Mange, &c. it will also cure. Spavin and King-bone may be cured, prevented and cured in their incipient state, and no confirmed cases are beyond the possibility of a radical cure. No case of the kind, however, treated by Dr. Sweet's Liniment, will be cured, and will be cured with the Tain Analyse. In cases of Indigestion, one light Cathartic pill, without intermission, will assist the Tain Analyse. This same law applies with nearly equal force to cases of Partial Paralysis, Stomach, & St. Vitus' Dance. See advertisement and read the pamphlet.

A Friend in Need. Try It.

DR. SWEET'S INFALLIBLE LINIMENT is prepared from the corpse of Dr. Stephen Sweet, of Connecticut, the great horse setter, and has been used in his practice for the last twenty years with the most astonishing success. As an external remedy it is without equal, and as a cure of Rheumatism, it is truly magical, and as a cure for Swells, Wounds, Sprains, Bruises, &c. its soothing, healing, and powerful strengthening properties, excite the most wonderful and astonishing of all who have ever given it a trial. Over four hundred certificates of its efficacy are on file, and it is within the last two years attested by the highest medical authorities. See advertisement.

Wool's Magic Compound is a pleasant remedy for all cases of colds, influenza, and all the pulmonary affections. It is a most reliable remedy, and is a powerful remedy for all the above cases. All honorable claims, late if for sale. See advertisement and testimonials of its merits in another column.

CHEERY HILL, Me. April 26, '66. Messrs. E. B. Mason & Co. In reply to yours, I would say that all the Wool's Magic Compound you agent left with me, and I would have sold none if I had it. From what those who have used it here tell me, I consider it the best remedy for colds in this State. It has given entire satisfaction. I have used it in some of our first citizens, who contracted taking it very little faith, but after a trial have recommended it to the highest terms. Respectfully, J. S. GILFREY.

The Wanderer to his Mother.

BY W. W. CLAPPE.

Oh, gladly would I come, mother,
Again unto my home;
No heart-rest have I ever found
Since I began to roam.
"Oft in the still night," mother,
My burning tears will fall;
Before me still will Fancy place
A picture of you all.
I often think of thee, mother,
And then within my breast
Such chiding memories will come,
I cannot, cannot rest.
I think of all the tears, mother,
For me that thou hast shed,
Of the anguish of thy tender heart—
And almost wish me dead.
I think, too, of the loved, mother,
That I have left behind;
A father, brother, sister's face
Is given on my mind.
No very long ago, mother,
We clustered hand in hand
Around the Elysian of home,
A happy household band.
But never may I again, mother,
These happy moments know;
But memory still will fill my mind
With misery and woe.
It was fearful, mother,
That thou wert from me all;
That fearful step, thou knowest not
How hard 'tis to recall.
Then weep no more for me, mother,
Then weep no more for me;
For tears and sorrow are not should come—
Oh, never come to thee.
I never shall forget, mother,
My childhood's happy home;
My heart will ever nestle there,
Though far away I roam.

Agricultural.

A Good Family Cow.

A most comprehensive title to a rather difficult attainment. Every country house-keeper knows what a good family cow means, altho' few, in the full scope of her requirements, have her in possession. Not to make too long a story of it, we will describe her, and let such of our readers as suppose they possess the creature examine whether they do or not, and govern themselves accordingly. In this matter we are not going to talk of what most folks suppose a "cow," simply, viz: a cud-chewing, hay and grass-eating creature, having hides, horns and legs, with a little bag under its hinder belly, yielding a few quarts, or pints, as the case may be, of ordinary milk. No such thing. Our cow is a fine, well-developed, comely animal. Her color is red, or red and white; or, it may be, she is a roan mixed of red and white, beautifully blended; or she may be a pure white, all these colors belonging to the short horn, or Durham breed, if she be of such. Or, she may be a rich mahogany red, with graceful, upturned horns, showing her proclivities to the Devon race. Otherwise, she may be partly brown and partly white, with heavy body, short legs, and crumpled horns, favoring the Ayrshire variety. Still, apart from all others, she may be a queer little Almersey, with the head of a female elk, the mild eye of a gazelle, the legs of a fawn, and the body of a goat, so strangely are her combinations of form put together—the very prettiest, ugliest, little housekeeping body of a bovine that a man of taste or raprice ever introduced into his paddock, or sported on his lawn. Of last, and most probable of all, your cow, kind reader, is of the common, or native breed, raised on some body-or-other's farm away off somewhere, whose pedigree and lineage you know nothing about, and care quite as little provided only she gives you "a good mess of milk," of some sort or other.

This matter of a cow, and a good cow, and what appertains to her, would make a three-columned article in our paper. We have no time for such an article now, nor would you read it, in all probability, should we write it; so we will compress our speculations into a brief space of words and conditions. We have named some breeds of cows. Good milkers may be found among them all, and some in different ones also. The milking quality scarcely belongs to any one breed. It may be cultivated in nearly every breed, by education, and use of the creature from calfhood up to mature age. Therefore, if you have a preference for a cow of a particular breed, and the money to indulge that preference, the one you want is usually to be had. Her good qualities are these: A clear, small, well-shaped head, with a little flesh on it as possible; a bright, prominent, gentle eye; a quick, lively, thin ear, and a slender horn, of shape characteristic of her breed. Her neck thin, of medium length, and well set back into her shoulders, without dew-lap. Her shoulders standing up to the level of her chest, well spread apart, standing wide at the brisket, which last should be prominent, full, and projecting forward. Her body, behind the shoulders, should be full, round, level and long; her hips broad, her loin level; her flank low; her rumps wide; and tail on a level, or nearly so with her loin. The twist, or junction of the thighs, should be low, and her udder running up into it, spreading the thighs well out, as indicative of a full development of the udder when in milk. The thigh should be thin below the rump, not meaty, which shows deficiency of milk, and coarseness. Her udder should be delicate, not very hairy, of a nearly square-rounded form, with teats well set apart, medium sized, smooth, and tapering. When milked, the udder should be small and flabby, and when filled, distended, of course, in every part alike—a fleshy or meaty bag indicating a moderate milker. Her legs should be short and fine-boned. Her hair should be fine, long, and wavy. Above all, she should be kind in temper, easy to milk, and her milk rich in quality, whatever the quantity may be. In her whole appearance let her be as handsome as you get her. Beauty is no disqualification in a cow. She should give not less than sixteen quarts a day, in the height of her milking season, in good pasture, at least, and twenty with good keep. Some cows give much more, according as they are larger or smaller in size. She should give milk full ten months in the year. Some want a cow to milk all the time; but that is contrary to her nature, and a rest of a few weeks is absolutely necessary for revivifying her lactical faculties and keeping them in their best condition. Now, kind reader, this is your cow. Go and find her. Such an one we keep, and have no taste for any other.

Another word to our suburban and country friends, who have a nice rural place, and agreeable surroundings. We have seen sundry of you who indulge in choice pictures and statuary within your houses. You have fine horses in your stables, and, in works of taste and art, and in the superior qualities of your equipage, you would as soon be caught in a mean act, as to have your good taste in such articles questioned. Yet you will buy a poor hack of a cow of some straggling cattle peddler, which is a disgrace to your establishment, both in her looks and bearing. She may have the sole virtue of giving a decent mess of milk, but, in everything else, is a disgrace to your establishment. She has cost you twenty-five, thirty, or, possibly, forty dollars.

Such a cow as we have described is quickly worth seventy-five to a hundred. The chances are that in her milk only, for the number of years you will use her, she will make up all that difference in price; but as a thing to look at, to keep, to use, to love—for what kindly piece of humanity is there, but what loves the cow that feeds his wife and children?—a tidy, well-bred cow is as superior to the common dunghill brutes that many people glory in, as a boxy, stylish dairymaid is to a squallid chaffron of the gutter.

—N. E. WOOD.

[From the New England Farmer.]
Washington as an Agriculturist.

DEAR FARMER:—Perhaps a short account of Washington as an agriculturist, may be new and interesting to some of your readers. His views upon the raising of tobacco might well be pondered by our Connecticut valley producers of the weed. I copy from "Washington's Political Legacies," to which is annexed an appendix, containing an account of his illness, death, &c. Boston, 1861.

"Colonel Washington was one of the greatest landholders in North America; his estate at Mount Vernon was computed in 1787, to consist of nine thousand acres, under his own management and cultivation; he had, likewise, various other large tracts of land in other parts of the State; his annual receipt from his estate, amounting in 1776, to four thousand and pounds sterling, and it was then believed would have sold for upwards of one hundred and sixty thousand pounds sterling, which is equal to more than $777,000. What his revenue was recently, we do not know, but there can be little presumption in supposing it was much increased under his prudent management.

"He allotted a part of the Saturday in each week to receive the reports of his overseers, which were registered progressively, to enable him to compare the labor with the produce of each particular part, and it is affirmed that this weekly retrospect was daily considered by this great man during the stormy movements of the revolutionary war, and his presidency of the United States.

He has raised in one year, seven thousand bushels of wheat, and ten thousand bushels of Indian corn, on his Mount Vernon estates; in a succeeding year he raised two hundred loads, some twenty-seven bushels of flax seed, and planted seven hundred bushels of potatoes; at the same time his domestics manufactured linen and woolen cloth enough for his numerous household, which amounted to nearly a thousand persons. With him, regularity and industry were the order of each day, and the consequent reflection made them all happy. Though agriculture was pursued by him with such undeviating attention, he used it rather as the means of his pleasure, than the end of his wishes, which concentrated in the labor to improve the well being of his fellow-citizens; and to effect this, he devoted from planting tobacco, to employ himself in the introduction and fostering such articles of vegetation as might ultimately tend to a national advantage.

Amherst, Mass., Oct. 17, 1860.

Your Local Paper.

Reader did you ever reflect on the subject of supporting liberally the press, and first of all, your own local newspaper? If not, permit me to suggest to you your privilege and your duty in this respect. Each city, town and village in a country like the United States should be represented by a live local newspaper, and it would be well for the people and the place so represented, to have a newspaper which would reflect credit on both, and a paper which would be an honor and a credit to the State and the nation. Strangers from abroad judge us by our newspaper press, and hence the importance of making that instrument as perfect and potent as possible.

It is the duty of every citizen of each place to contribute something towards improving and strengthening the local press. He may do it by subscribing and paying for his paper, by advertising in it, by recommending it to others, or in all these ways. Were the country press as liberally patronized, and as well supported as it should be, the country would not be so flooded with the worthless trash in the shape of "love-and-murder stories," as it now is, which poison and vitiate the minds of the young. There is usually more moral integrity and circumspection manifested by editors of the country press than by those in the large cities, and a more healthy tone of mind and morals will generally be found to pervade them. They are more free from the reports of degrading vices and crimes, and are never opened with that feeling which attaches to the common "dash" literature of the day.

The country press may be improved. Each individual residing within the limits of its sphere and circulation may aid in its improvement. He may be on the "look-out" for interesting information, and when this is obtained, communicate it to the editor. He may bring his own business before the public by an appropriate advertisement, or if he has beef, pork, or grain to sell, he may announce it through his local press. He may give historical sketches of the past, and show the progress and changes going on at present. He may help to make his local paper a source of instruction to strangers, and of entertainment to his neighbors. Is he a manufacturer? Let him invite capital and industry by siting forth such natural advantages as the place may possess, and indicate the routes by which it may be reached, its accessibility to the markets, etc. There is no estimating the advantages to any town or village of a live local journal, and we doubt if there is to be found at the present time, an editor who gets fully paid for the services he performs, and we put the responsibility where it belongs—namely, on the people, whose business and duty it is first of all to support handsomely their own local paper.—Life Illustrated.

GRACE AND ELEGANCE.—Grace is, in a great measure, a natural gift; elegance implies cultivation, or something of more artificial character. A rustic, uneducated girl may be graceful; but an elegant woman must be accomplished and well trained. It is the same with things as with persons; we talk of a graceful tree, but an elegant house or other building. Animals may be graceful, but they cannot be elegant. The movements of a kitten or a young fawn are full of grace; but to call them elegant animals would be absurd. Lastly, elegance may be applied to mental qualifications, which graceful never can. Elegance must always imply something that is made or invented by man.

THE BRAVE BOY.

A CAPITAL STORY.

I shall never forget a lesson which I received when quite a young lad at the Academy in H. Among my school fellows were Hartley and Jenson. They were somewhat older than myself, and to Jenson I looked up as a sort of leader in matters of opinion as well as of sport. He was not at heart malicious, but he had a foolish ambition of being thought witty, and he made himself feared by the bad habit of turning things into ridicule, and being ever on the look out for matter of derision.

Hartley was a new scholar, and little was known of him among the boys. One morning, as we were on the way to school he was seen driving a cow along the road toward a neighboring field. A group of boys, among whom was Jenson, met him as he was passing. The opportunity was one not to be lost by Jenson. "Hallo!" he exclaimed, "what's the price of milk? I say Jonathan, what do you fodder on? What will you take for all the gold on her horns? Boys, if you want to see the latest Paris style, look at those horns!"

Hartley, waving his hand to us with a pleasant smile, and driving the cow to the field, took down the bars of a rail-fence, saw her safely in the field, and then, putting up the bars, came and entered the school with the rest of us. After school, in the afternoon, he let out his cow and drove her off, none of us knew where. And every day for weeks he went through the same task.

The boys of B. Academy were nearly all the sons of wealthy parents and some of them, among whom was Jenson, were dense enough to look down with a sort of disdain upon a scholar who had to drive a cow. The sneers and jeers of Jenson were accordingly often renewed. He once, on a plea that he did not like the odor of the barn, refused to sit next to Hartley. Occasionally he would inquire after the cow's health, pronouncing the word "ke-w" after the manner of some country people.

With admirable good nature did Hartley bear all these silly attempts to wound and annoy him. I do not remember that he was ever once betrayed into a look or word of angry retaliation. (Good!) "I suppose, Hartley," said Jenson one day "your daily means to make a milkman of you?"

"Why not?" asked Hartley—"O nothing! only don't leave much water in the cans after you rinse them—that's all!" The boys laughed, and Hartley, not in the least mortified, replied: "Never fear; if ever I should rise to be a milkman, I'll give good measure and good milk too."

The day after this conversation there was a public examination, at which a number of ladies and gentlemen from the neighboring towns were present. Prizes were awarded by the principal of our academy, and both Hartley and Jenson received a creditable number; for, in respect to scholarship, these two were about equal. After the ceremony of distribution, the principal remarked that there was one prize, consisting of a gold medal, which was rarely awarded, not so much on account of its great cost, as because the instances were rare which rendered its bestowal proper. It was the prize of honor. The last boy who received one, was young Manners, who three years ago, rescued a blind girl from drowning. The principal then said that, with permission of the company, he would relate a short story.

"I can do without them for a while." "O no," said the old woman, "I can't consent to that, but here is a pair of heavy boots that I bought Henry, who can't wear them. If you would only buy those, giving us what they cost, we should get along nicely."

"The scholar bought the boots, clumsy as they were, and has worn them up to this time."

"Well, when it was discovered by other boys of the academy that our scholar was in the habit of driving a cow, he was assailed every day with laughter and ridicule. His cowhide boots in particular were made matter of mirth. But he kept on cheerfully and bravely, day after day, never slurring observation, driving the widow's cow and wearing his thick boots, contented in the thought that he was doing right; caring not for all the jeers and sneers that could be uttered. He never undertook to explain why he drove a cow, for he was not inclined to make a vaunt of his charitable motives, and furthermore, in his heart he had no sympathy with the false pride that could look down with ridicule on any useful employment. It was by mere accident that his course of kindness and self-denial was yesterday discovered by his teacher.

"And now ladies and gentlemen, I appeal to you, was there not true heroism in this boy's conduct? Nay, Master Hartley, do not hide out of sight behind the black-board! You are not afraid of ridicule, you must not be afraid of praise. Come forth, come forth, Master Edward James Hartley, and let us see your honest face!"

As Hartley, with blushing cheeks, made his appearance, what a round of applause, in which the whole company joined, spoke the general appreciation of his conduct! The ladies stood upon benches and waved their handkerchiefs. The old men wiped the gathering moisture from the corners of their eyes and clapped their hands. Those clumsy boots on Hartley's feet seemed a promise or ornament than a crown would have been on his head. The medal was bestowed on him amid general acclamation. Let me tell you a good thing of Jenson before I conclude. He was heartily ashamed of his ill-natured raillery, and after we were dismissed, he went with tears of many self-rebuke in his eyes, and tendered his hand to Hartley, making a handsome apology for his past ill-manners. "Think no more of it, old fellow," said Hartley, "let us all go and have a ramble in the woods before we break up the vacation." The boys, one and all, followed Jenson's example, and then we set forth with huzzas into the woods. What a happy day it was!

Boys and girls, never despise another who may be more meekly clad than yourselves. There is many a noble heart under a well-patched garment. Whenever you are tempted to look scornfully upon one in a poor or plain dress, think of Edward James Hartley, the brave boy and his gold medal. S. S. Advertiser.

A Novelty in the Art World. PHOTOGRAPHY: PORCELAIN.

Secured by letters patent in the U. States, England, France and Belgium.

The Dan. Photographic Porcelain Company, No. 24 Broadway, N. York, having secured their novel and ingenious invention by American and European patents, are fully prepared to present all orders for—

MINIATURE LIKENESSES OF PERSONS ON CHINA, presenting all the attractive and advantageous features of ordinary photography, the brilliancy and finish of a water-color drawing, and a high and sustained quality of durability, by being rendered as indestructible as the natural brown of the original upon which they are transferred.

As the patented process of the Company uses the reproduction of photographs, not only on plain surfaces, but upon such as are composed of any degree of irregularity—porcelain may be produced with facility and accuracy, and of any dimension, upon Porcelain ware of any description and thus transformed into articles of luxury or of home-hold utility, such as—

Cups, Vases, Breakfast Cups, Toilet Articles, &c., thereby securing faithful portraits and the making a unique and exquisite style of ornamental articles in domestic use.

In order to furnish facilities for the gratification of the popular taste, and to meet the wants of those interested in the fine art of photographing, the Company have imported from Europe a collection of superior porcelain goods, manufactured by the best workmen, which they sell at cost prices.

As the Company have secured the patent right and consequently the only bona-fide articles of the process, they have determined to make an effort to place in every section of the Union a opportunity to possess.

PORTRAITS ON CHINA.
To make the following proposition to residents in the country, who are unable to visit to consult the Agents and Galleries in New York. Persons wishing a photograph, engraving, or decalcomanie in the shape of a portrait, on a Porcelain ware, such as Cups, Vases, &c., will receive in return by express, free of charge, a Richly Ornamented Breakfast Cup & Saucer, with the Portrait Transferred thereon. By transmitting a false receipt and Testimonials, they will receive a new and valuable article, which they will receive in return.

A PAIR OF RICH SEVRES VASES, with the portrait engraved equal to museum paintings, and in like manner, portraits can be reproduced on porcelain ware or Vases of every Quality of Finish, ranging in price from Twenty to One Hundred Dollars per Pair.

N. B.—Be particular in writing the address, town, county and state distinctly. All letters to be addressed to "Manager, American Photographic Porcelain Company," 241 Broadway, New York.
